Fr. Gross Had Longest Tenure

Saint Joseph's history from 1951-77 is detailed below in this continuing series of Bicentennial features. The article was researched by Father Dominic Gerlach, associate professor of history, and written by Charles J. Schuttrow, Director of Public Information.

Father Raphael H. Gross assumed the presidency at Saint Joseph's College in 1951, and he remained in that position for the next 14 years, marking the longest presidential tenure in college history.

A member of the Department of English who had only recently finished work on his Ph.D. at the University of Montreal, Father Gross directed an administration that was not only lengthy, but significant.

FR. RAPHAEL H. GROSS

Growth of the college during his term far outshone the years covered by any of his predecessors, and a comparison of the college catalog of 1951-52 with that of 1965-66 reveals a staggering range of development.

In general, this comparison shows a vast extension of the college in every direction and a much greater responsibility for Father Gross was a branch campus of the college which was opened in East Chicago, Ind., in the fall of 1951.

Due to this phenomenal growth of the college, a shift in the basis of revenue became necessary. Before 1951, a major part of the school's support came from the farm and contributed services of the clerical faculty and staff. Now other avenues of support had to be tapped.

Room, board and tuition was raised from $460 per semester in 1951 to $935 by 1965. Father Gross personally played an important role in developing other new sources of income. In 1951, he became one of the most active of the Presidents in the Associated Colleges in Indiana in soliciting corporation heads for funds.

In May, 1962, he instituted a new idea in fund raising which has occupied his time ever since retiring from the presidency: the Fellows Program, which under his direction has contributed several million dollars to the college, and has played a major role in the college's economic and cultural growth throughout the past fifteen years.

More than a decade has already elapsed since Father Charles Banet became the 13th President of Saint Joseph's College on June 7, 1965, and during his leadership the school has progressed on all fronts: academically, culturally, socially, religiously and athletically.

Moreover, during a period of inflation and severe financial challenges to this nation's private colleges and universities, Saint Joseph's has shown an improving financial profile as gifts from alumni, foundations and other groups and individuals are now at an all-time high.

Father Banet had served Saint Joseph's as its Head Librarian for 12 years when he became the first President to be elected by the Board of Trustees.

One of Father Banet's first projects was to seek legal counsel to modernize the college charter and to clarify the principles of governance of the corporation. One immediate consequence of this was the addition on June 16, 1966, of five lay members to the college Board of Trustees. This marked the first time that anyone other than members of the Precious Blood Society had served on the board, and this launched a trend that has since swept many other Catholic colleges.

This board was enlarged from 11 to 40 on Oct. 4, 1974, with most members of the earlier advisory Board

Saint Joseph's pioneering path. Support from organizations like the Lilly Endowment, Inc., with grants up to $250,000, provide evidence of the acclaim the Core program has merited.

The late 1960's was a period of unrest on many college campuses, but it was more a time for open dialogue and understanding at Saint Joseph's. Father Banet has run an "open" administration, exemplified by his principles of participatory governance, and the results were evident during the late sixties.

While many colleges and universities suffered through periods of violence, Collegeville remained calm and quiet. Student protests have not been entirely absent—the cafeteria food, for example, has periodically drawn criticism—but protests have been regularly met with open administrative doors and mutual understanding.

Nothing was more shocking, however, than the loss of the Administration Building to fire in the early morning hours of Feb. 4, 1973. It was probably a greater shock than the "Old Gym" fire of 1914 because of financial problems facing the school at the time, but all members of the college family quickly united to turn disaster into something positive.

Students, faculty, area residents, alumni, parents, trustees and all friends of the college united in a fresh and more positive attitude toward the college. The Brick-by-Brick fund-raising campaign has raised approximately $2,000,000 for recovery from fire losses and up to now the recovery has been accomplished by renovation and functional reassignment of existing facilities.

For example, the administrative offices have been transferred to Xavier Hall, which was formerly occupied by Precious Blood Society seminarians, and the faculty offices have been moved to Gaspar Hall, formerly a student dormitory.

In addition, after 22 years, Saint Joseph's branch campus in East Chicago, Ind., was formally detached, and on Dec. 7, 1973, it was named Calumet College. Father Banet had initiated action towards this goal in 1965.

Fr. Shea Serves President Ford Committee

Fr. Donald F. Shea, Chairman of the SJC History Department served on recent Ford Committee campaign.

Fr. Donald F. Shea, Chairman of Saint Joseph's history department, and who has taught constitutional history for 29 years at the college recently served as the mideast regional coordinator during the past presidential campaign for former President Ford.

Fr. Shea was on a six-week leave of absence from the college during the campaign, was based in Washington, and aided in coordinating the recent president's campaign in 11 mideastern states which included traveling through Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and Delaware.

Fr. Shea says "This was really a unique opportunity to make history, to actually see politics from the inside." In addition, he said "I joined the campaign out of a love for politics, and because of a commitment to the Republican philosophy."

He particularly stresses his belief in the Jeffersonian view that "That government which governs least governs best." As a Republican, Fr. Shea noted that "President Ford's insistence to return to the private sector all those aspects of education, social aid, and welfare is far superior to increasing bureaucratic government control."

Fr. Shea holds a B.A. degree from DePauw University, an M.A. from the University of Michigan and a Ph.D. from Loyola University of Chicago, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa (National Scholastic Honorary Society).

FR. CHARLES H. BANET

Father Banet's administration also has tackled projections of a declining enrollment, and the first step taken was the decision to make the campus coeducational. Justin Hall, the newest and largest dormitory, was completed in 1968 and women residents joined the campus population that fall.

An innovation perhaps equalling coeducation in significance was the radical restructuring of the general education program into the present Core program, which was begun with the freshman class in the fall of 1969. The program has won widespread recognition from educators and educational associations, and many other schools are now taking steps to follow emphasis on the role of the layman on both faculty and staff. For example, the student body grew from 500 to 1341; the proportion of lay teachers to clerical faculty in 1951 was 16 to 40 and by 1965 it was 48 to 44.

Academic offerings increased from 20 departments with 16 majors in 1951 to 27 departments with 24 majors in 1965. These figures are just an indicator of a greater diversity in all campus organizations and activities. Remember too, that the total SJC staff including janitorial and office workers, for example, also correspondingly increased.

Many brothers served in 1951 as hall prefects, librarians, infirmarians, and workers in the carpentry and electrical shops. By 1965, most of them had been replaced by salaried personnel. In 1958, the Sisters of the Precious Blood, who had taken care of the kitchen and dining rooms since the founding of the college, also left their positions at the college.

As Saint Joseph's grew in excellence and reputation, its enrollment increased almost as fast, if not faster, than facilities could be readied. The growth from 500 to 1341 students necessitated the most extensive building program in college history: Noll and Bennett Halls in 1955, Gallagher and Halas Halls in 1958, Halleck Center and Schwieterman Hall in 1963. The Sisters' convent was converted into Aquinas Hall in 1959.

Much of this expansion was made possible by the availability of federal (Housing and Urban Development) loans. A reminder of the booming student population is evidenced by SJC's ownership of Washburn Hall in Rensselaer.

Two other Rensselaer homes also were rented, and the "White House," the powerhouse, Administration Building basement and sections of Science Hall plus two other farm homes had been at one time or another pressed into service for student housing.

Meanwhile, the college for the first time gained national attention via its athletic program—specifically, the football team. On Dec. 22, 1956, the team won the co-championship of the National Association of Inter-collegiate Athletics and played Montana State to a 0-0 tie on a muddy field in Little Rock, Ark., in the first Aluminum Bowl game.

An expansion in publications came in the fall of 1954 with the establishment of PARENTS MAGAZINE, and in 1956 the Ford Foundation grant of $270,000 made possible additional benefits for the lay faculty.

A concrete result of this was the faculty housing project in the woods south of the college which was begun in 1957. In 1958 the post office was enlarged and made a substation of the Rensselaer post office. An added

Hoffman Named To Sports Hall Of Fame

SJC paid fitting tribute to one of its finest basketball players Jan. 15 by formally inducting Bernie Hoffman of Jasper, Ind., into its Sports Hall of Fame.

A dinner in his honor, and Hall of Fame ceremonies prior to the SJC vs. Tri-State basketball game highlighted the evening's festivities. Hoffman played for the Pumas during 1939-1943 and scored 947 career points (an 11.0 game average), compiled 511 rebounds and shot .721 from the free throw line.

SJC President Fr. Charles Banet, Bernie Hoffman, wife Joan and Athletic Director Richard Scharf during Hoffman's induction into the SJC Sports Hall of Fame.

Hoffman graduated with a bachelor of science degree in accounting, and is now the owner and operator of the Hoosier Business Machine Company in Jasper. In addition to his athletic success, Hoffman is a "Fellow" of the college, has previously served on the Alumni Board, is an active member of J.O.E. (Jasper, Owensboro, and Evansville) alumni chapter, and was instrumental in helping secure over $15,000 in office furniture from local Jasper community area businessmen alumni after the Administration Building fire of 1973.

For the last six years, Hoffman has been an ambassador for Saint Joseph's to the Associated Colleges of Indiana in its annual solicitation of financial support from private industry.

SJC Campus, Community Working Together

College clubs and organizations have varied purposes, but a common thread running through many of these groups at Saint Joseph's College is their readiness to assist in campus and community projects.

Working closely with the admissions office in student recruitment is the Courier Club, under the presidency of Alana Ahmed, senior French major from Poughkeepsie, N.Y. This club helps familiarize prospective students with the college through tours and visits to high schools.

Club members conduct tours of the campus for students interested in coming to Saint Joseph's, thus giving the newcomers a more personal contact with the college. Club members represent Saint Joseph's at "college nights" in various high schools, where they talk and answer questions about campus life on a student-to-student level.

Homecoming and the Little 500 get a boost from the Phi Kappa Fraternity, under the leadership this year of Jim Muting, senior speech major from Chicago. This club sponsors the annual bonfire the night before the homecoming game and is in charge of track maintenance during the Little 500 go-cart race.

In addition, Phi Kappa works on the campus "fall follies" each October, assists in the annual Fine Arts Festival and joins the local community in raising funds for the Heart Fund. The club also helps in varied local assistance programs.

Little Sisters serves the community by assisting the Phi Kappa Fraternity with some of its activities. This group also fixes Thanksgiving baskets for needy families, makes Easter baskets for underprivileged children, and raises money for those with special needs. Blue Key National Honor Fraternity assists the college with Homecoming festivities by sponsoring and organizing the Homecoming parade. The group also is looking into the possibility of members of the fraternity being available as tutors for students on campus.
